Hitler's wild Canadians

In the spring of 1940 small towns across Canada awakened to the sound of Nazi jackboots. No, it wasn't an invasion, but some 40,000 German soldiers imprisoned as POWs on Canadian soil.

Directed by Douglas Williams, Hitler's Canadians is an insightful documentary about these prisoners, including their ingenious and often times hilarious escape attempts. Many survivors are interviewed and recount their experiences, while many of the events are re-enacted. Very interesting.

Hitler's Canadians airs on History Television, March 11 at 8pm.
